[DE-] / [RE-] GENDERING LANGUAGE STUDIES IN EDUCATION

6th – 7th JUNE 2024, MAYNOOTH UNIVERSITY

Call for Papers

Abstract Submission Deadline: 19th May 2024

This conference, bringing together a wide range of stakeholders, is the capstone event of the HEA-funded Gender Equality in Language Studies (GELS) research project, the first study of converse gender inequality in Language Studies in Ireland. The project's four partner universities (Maynooth University, Munster Technological University, Trinity College Dublin, University of Limerick) have undertaken empirical research primarily aimed at developing strategy recommendations to achieve greater gender equality and diverse representation in Language Studies.

Keynote Speaker: Prof. Marie-Pierre Moreau, Professor of Education, Anglia Ruskin University, UK

We particularly welcome submissions that engage with contemporary and emerging theoretical and methodological approaches to understanding converse gender dynamics in Language Studies. Submissions from disciplines with similar gender dynamics (e.g. Nursing, Social Studies, Speech & Language Therapy, Early Childhood Studies) are also welcome.

Abstracts are invited for 20-minute papers, in English and/or in Irish, that explore any aspect of gender inequality in language education or other disciplines with converse gender dynamics.

Areas for investigation may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Gender inequality in language teaching and learning
- Representation of Language Studies and Gender in the media
- Gender inequality in language(s) choice in secondary and tertiary education
- Feminisation of teaching
- Gender and language-in-education policy
- Inequalities in the language-teaching profession
- Gender in language-learning materials and resources
- Language Skills, Gender and the workplace
- Gender in Teacher Education
- Student Engagement and Gender in DEIS schools
